

A Folk, Acoustic, and Atmospheric record, “The Last Miracle” truly encapsulates the evolutionary journey of Amanda Emblem.

Kandanga Creek, QLD, Australia — Underscoring the beauty, depth, and grace of a promising singer-songwriter, “The Last Miracle” is a stirring album from The Amanda Emblem Experiment. Evoking feelings of contentment, tranquility, and appreciation, the captivating single takes listeners right back to home.

An entrancing album, ‘The Last Miracle’ brings with itself imagery of the lush rural rainforest environment, in a subtle nod to Mary Valley in Queensland, where the song and album was written and recorded. Having dropped on October 21st, 2022, ‘The Last Miracle’ showcases 10 stunning singles, each with its own distinct thematic interpretation.

Acoustic-based, the absorbing album encompasses audiences with a deep-seated feeling of contentment and reassures them that they are close to finding a place they can call home. Emphasized by the striking songwriting style of vocalist and guitarist Amanda Emblem, ‘The Last Miracle’ showcases Billy Adams on drums and back up vocals and Kelly King Flute on the harmonica and back up vocals.

Evoking a unique sense of comfort, the new record also features Andy Tainsh on bass, programming, slide guitar and banjo, with Scott Astill covering back up vocals. The track was engineered by Andy Tainsh and Scott Astill, with the former also looking after mixing. Releasing under the imprint of Wild Weather Records, the album was mastered by Steve Smart Studio 301.

The record’s first single “Coconut Rum”, paints an expressive and cautionary tale about drinking too much rum. Meanwhile, audiences enter a blissful space with the rhythmic, cool appeal of “The Valley,” which delivers a peaceful air of confidence and acceptance.

The record’s overarching ‘peaceful’ stature is a seamless reflection of Amanda Emblem’s own evolution, from being a pro touring artist to semi retired songwriter and market gardener- a transformation which was born from necessity during the pandemic lockdowns. Within this time, the artist found peace in the isolation and was faced with the challenge of creating a new business. Finding a collective of talented local musicians, Amanda found fellow voices to share her musical journey and a producer whom she credits to have been a game changer in the way she can professionally communicate with audiences.
